Construction Occupational Health & Safety

Introduction

The construction industry has taken huge strides forward with regards to Safety and Health within the construction industry. There is still significant opportunity to make our high-hazard industry safer and to continue to drive down the rates of accidents and ill health linked to construction work.

This free half day event will provide self-employed builders and smaller construction companies with practical up-to-date information, help and advice in regards to construction safety and health issues.

The information given on the day will help you take action to protect you and your employees' safety, future health, and wellbeing.

Topics covered will include:

- Asbestos
- Protecting the public
- Fire Safety
- Construction Dust
- Basic COSHH
- Mental Health

Whether you are a self-employed builder or run a small building company this free event is a must.

Places at this event are limited and it is likely to be highly popular
